

Agency Summary & Statutory Authority

The Idaho Public Utilities Commission was organized in 1913 and is vested with power and jurisdiction to supervise and regulate investor-owned electric, gas, water, and telecommunications utilities, as well as pipelines and railroads, within the state. The commission protects the citizens and utilities of Idaho by determining fair, just, and reasonable rates for utility commodities and services to be delivered safely, reliably, and efficiently. Statutory authority is found in Titles 61 and 62, Idaho Code and the budget request is found on page 5-45 of the Legislative Budget Book.
